

SITE SAFETY MANAGER APPOINTMENT FORM

Huracan recognises their obligation concerning the Petroleum and Gas (Production and Safety) Act 2004 and the requirement to manage operations safely and appropriately. As such, the relevant persons may be appointed as Site Safety Manager to assist in discharging this obligation.

As described in the Petroleum and Gas (Production and Safety) Act 2004, as Site Safety Manager, I have received the necessary training to fulfil my obligations and understand my duties for the location I am in control of at a Petroleum & Gas site includes:

- i. Each person entering the site is given an appropriate induction that enables the person to comply with the Huracan Safety Management Plan applicable to the operating plant (Section 693); and*
- ii. Each person at the site complies with Standard Operating Procedures, Emergency Response Procedures and other measures necessary for the safety of the site and the person (Section 693); and*
- iii. Each person working at the site performs their functions safely and follows standard operating procedures for the plant (Section 693); and*
- iv. Necessary first aid, safety and other like equipment appropriate to the likely hazards of the site is :
 - Available for use; and*
 - Adequately maintained; and*
 - Reasonably available to anyone authorised to be on the site; and
- v. Relevant staff are trained in first aid, emergency and other general safety procedures (Section 693); and*
- vi. Each person at an operating plant must, to the extent of the person's duties and responsibilities under this Act or the Huracan Safety Management Plan for the plant, take all necessary and reasonable action to ensure no person or property is exposed to more than an acceptable level of risk (Section 699); and*
- vii. As the operator of an operating plant, not carry out an activity if the activity creates an unacceptable level of risk to a person or plant at an adjacent or overlapping coal mining operation under the Coal Mining Safety and Health Act (Section 699A); and*
- viii. Comply with safety procedures and other obligations under the Huracan Safety Management Plan for the plant to the extent the procedures and obligations apply to the person (Section 702); and*
- ix. Comply with lawful instructions given for the safety of persons by the operator of, or supervisor for the plant (Section 703); and*
- x. Not wilfully or recklessly do an act or make an omission that might adversely affect the safety of anyone at the plant (Section 704)*

I, Jon Hollingworth, as the Huracan General Manager undertaken the necessary training provided, accept and understand my responsibilities under the Queensland Petroleum and Gas (Production and Safety) Act 2004 and the Queensland Petroleum and Gas (Production and Safety) Regulation 2004 as Site Safety Manager at our workshop location 151 Warooby Lane, Euthulla, QLD.
